Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit ratings.

United Mexican States (security code: -)

<Affirmation>

Foreign Currency Long-term Issuer Rating: A-

Outlook: Negative Local Currency Long-term Issuer Rating: A+ Outlook: Negative

Bonds: A-

Rationale

- (1) Mexico is a major regional economy with a population of 126 million and a nominal GDP of USD 1.27 trillion, both of which are the second-largest in Latin America. The ratings are supported by the country's solid export-oriented industrial base, flexible and agile monetary and exchange rate policies, and resilience to external shocks. On the other hand, they are constrained by the country's oil industry that needs modernization and the uncertainty of the government's economic policies. At the time of the previous review, JCR had changed its outlook to negative because of stagnant domestic investment in the private sector under uncertain economic policies of the new left-wing government led by President Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador (AMLO) and because of the high likelihood of a significant deterioration in the fiscal position due to the economic setback caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. Since then, the AMLO administration has been providing antipandemic support measures with due heed to fiscal discipline, and the deterioration of the fiscal position has been restrained in comparison to JCR's prior assumptions. On the other hand, JCR believes that the economic policy uncertainty remains high, with the government curbing its support to the business community hit by the pandemic and promoting policies to restrain privatesector investment in the energy sector. JCR holds that the highly uncertain economic policy toward the private sector might let sluggish private investment take hold and depress the country's potential growth rate. Based on the above, JCR has affirmed the ratings and kept their outlook negative with a view to examining the impact of the government's economic policy on private investment after the pandemic. On a separate note, it has retained A+ for Mexico's country ceiling in line with the affirmation of the ratings.
- (2) President AMLO has pressed ahead with policies for the eradication of corruption and improvement of social welfare for the socially vulnerable and low-income group since taking office in 2018. His government has also given priority to assistance to those groups in its anti-pandemic measures, retaining a high public approval rating. It announced joint public-private infrastructure development plans in October and November 2020 with the aim of stirring up private-sector infrastructure investment. Meanwhile, it has been intensifying moves to curb private-sector investment whereas allowing the state-owned oil corporation Petroleos Mexicanos (PEMEX) and electric utility Comisión Federal de Electricidad (CFE) to assume core roles in the development plans for the energy sector. In March 2021, the parliament passed a bill on revision of the Electricity Industry Law to give greater priority to CFE's power generation. The Mexican economy contracted 8.2% in real GDP terms in 2020. While it is likely to recover in the 4% range in 2021 led by external demand, JCR sees that any recovery of domestic private demand, in particular private investment, will be rather slow. JCR holds that given the government's uncertain economic policy, the sluggish trend of private investment may continue even after the end of the pandemic.
- (3) The government has been curbing its pandemic-related expenditures to maintain fiscal discipline. On the revenue side, while oil-related revenues fell sharply, tax revenues increased as a result of the administration's efforts to strengthen tax collection since its inception. In addition, while both the public sector borrowing requirement (PSBR) and the historical balance of the PSBR (HBPSBR) in 2020 rose to 3.9% and 52.3% of GDP, respectively, their increases from the previous year were largely contained in comparison to JCR's earlier assumptions. The government's initial budget plan for 2021 calls for reducing the PSBR and HBPSBR in the year to 3.4% and 53.7%, respectively, and cutting them in the medium term. On the other hand, the government will further reduce PEMEX's tax burdens in the medium term to prompt the recovery of its financial strength

- so that it could play the main role in the upstream oil development. It intends to provide financial support to PEMEX as needed in the meantime, without putting public finances at risk. However, PEMEX remains financially squeezed due to the steep fall of oil prices last year and reduced oil demand stemming from the pandemic. JCR will keep closely monitoring future developments as additional financial support from the government may become necessary.
- (4) Mexico has a solid export infrastructure led by the automobile and electronic appliance industries that have been supported by a steady inflow of foreign direct investment. The share of manufacturing products in the total export value has already reached 90%. Imports falling faster than exports due to the pandemic and the effectuation in July 2020 of USMCA that reduced uncertainty over trade issues with the US, a major concern over the past few years, have led to an improvement of the country's external balance. The current account balance, in chronic annual deficits equal to around 2% of GDP in recent years, bounced back to a surplus of 2.4% in 2020 mainly as goods imports slowed faster than exports due to the impact of the pandemic. Exports led by cars have resumed growing year-on-year since the end of 2020, and their recovery has been faster than imports. In the financial account, the inflow of direct investment has been relatively steady even amid the pandemic. Moreover, portfolio investment has returned to a net inflow since the third quarter of 2020 from a temporary net outflow in the second quarter. The total external debt stood at 44.3% of GDP at the end of 2020, up from 36.6% at the end of the previous year, due partly to the effect of fallen exchange rates during the early period of the pandemic. However, the increase was solely from long-term debts, and its overall ratio to GDP remains at manageable levels. The external debt component of HBPSBR in the public sector stood at 18.7% at the end of 2020. The foreign exchange reserves have been on the increase due to the improved external balance, rising to a level 3.7 times the short-term external debt at the end of 2020. In addition, the central bank entered into a currency swap agreement with the US Federal Reserve in March 2020, and retains the IMF's Flexible Credit Line, making the country more resilient to external shocks. Meanwhile, the banking sector's capital adequacy ratio stood high at 17.7% and its NPL ratio stayed reined at 2.3% at the end of 2020.
