MARKET DEPTH – YIELD CURVE

In only a few years, the Mexican debt market has experienced an outstanding growth, extending the yield curve from one year in 1999 to 30 years in less than a decade. This extension was due to the rapid growth of more domestic and foreign participants, with various investment horizons and strategies.

HEDGE OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES

CETES (MEXICAN FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TREASURY CERTIFICATES)

- The Mexican Federal Treasury Certificates (CETES) are the oldest debt instrument issued by the Federal Government. These securities are zero-coupon bonds and are traded at a discount.
- Face value is 10 Mexican pesos. Currently, CETES are issued for 28- and 91-day terms, and at maturities close to six months and one year.
- The primary issue is carried out through auctions, where participants present their bids for the amount they want to purchase and the discount rate they are willing to pay.

BONOS: MEXICAN FEDERAL GOVERNMENT DEVELOPMENT BONDS WITH A FIXED INTEREST RATE

- In Mexico there is a broad secondary market for these securities. Today, it is possible to carry out outright sale and repo transactions as well as securities' lending transactions. CETES can also be used as underlying assets in derivative markets (futures and options in MEXDER and CME). CETES series are designed to be fungible.
- ID codes have eight characters. The first and second identify the security ("BI"), and the remaining six indicate the instrument's maturity date (year, month and day). The relevant number to identify a CETE is the maturity date.
- Two CETES issued on different dates but maturing on the same date will have the same identification code, and therefore cannot be recognized from one another.
- Example of series of CETES issued on August 24, 2000 for a 28-day term maturing on September 21, 2000: BI000921.

BONOS: MEXICAN FEDERAL GOVERNMENT DEVELOPMENT BONDS WITH A FIXED INTEREST RATE

- The primary issue is carried out through auctions, where participants present their bids for the amount they want to purchase and the price they are willing to pay through a market maker.
- In Mexico, there is a broad secondary market for these securities. Today, it is possible to carry out outright sale and repo transactions as well as securities' lending transactions. BONOS can also be used as underlying assets in derivative markets (futures and options), although up to now they have never been used as such.
- BONOS are not fungible unless they have the same interest rate. This is the reason the series is composed of eight characters. The first one identifies the security ("M"); second a blank space and the remaining six, the bond's maturity date (year, month and day).
- Example of series for MBONOS issued on March 15th, 2019 for a 5-year term, maturing in September 9th, 2024: M240905.

HEDGE OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES: MEXDER AND CME

- The local futures market will give coverage of risk and anticipate interest rate movements, because in the BONDES F, the final coupon calculations will be made in reference to overnight F-TIE rates to each day in the coupon period.
- CME and MEXDER have mirrored in the future contracts F-TIE. This will come in handy by using the futures to effectively hedge changing overnight F-TIE.
- The local futures market will have a positive influence as it has a curve with collateral in pesos that reflects interbank market conditions, taking overnight bank funding as a reference. This will benefit investors and open doors to new participants.
